Session 3A	Jocelyn Navarro	Understanding Trauma Responsive Pedagogy in Early Childhood	You've most assuredly seen the effects of trauma in your classroom! Understanding trauma and its effects is crucial for educators at all levels, especially in early childhood education, where the impact can be profound and long-lasting. Trauma can affect both neurological and physiological development in children, influencing their behavior, emotions, and ability to learn. To address these challenges and support children impacted by trauma, responsive teaching strategies are essential. You'll leave with new strategies to use on Monday. Core Competency: Growth and Development: Social/Emotional
Session 3B	Jenn Kliever	Navigate Conflict with Connection, Resolution, and Peace	Participants will complete their individual pain/peace cycle, which is a model used to identify our core feelings that get triggered in conflict and allow us to regulate the feelings and respond out of the truth of who we are in Christ (always loved and safe), so we can respond to others from a place of connection, truth, and peace. Without doing this work, we'll naturally respond with some form of blame, shame, control, or escape. Core Competency: Relationships

Come be empowered with new perspectives and individual and whole-group class management approaches that honor the whole child while building autonomy and positive self-esteem in the classroom, all with a Christian worldview.
